

To: His Excellency Hojjatoleslam Sayed Mohammad Khatami, President of Iran

BOBBY SANDS STREET, Tehran, Iran.

THE name Bobby Sands is known throughout the world, symbolising the heroism of an Irish prisoner and his comrades who died on hunger strike in their unequal fight against their British jailors. Over the course of the past two years British Foreign Secretary Jack Straw has been lobbying Iran's Foreign Minister to change the name of Bobby Sands Street, where the British Embassy is situated, in the capital Tehran. (It was formerly known as Winston Churchill Street.)

Bobby Sands was an Irish patriot and martyr, who died on 5 May 1981, after 66 days on hunger strike. Whilst in prison he was elected as a Member of Parliament [MP]. One hundred thousand people attended his funeral, including the Iranian ambassador to Sweden.

The British government has no right to be in Ireland, just as it has no right to be interfering in the affairs of any other nation.

We appeal to the Iranian government and its people not to bow to requests from the British government to rename Bobby Sands Street.

Sincerely,

Danny Morrison

 Timothy O'Grady I remember very well first hearing that a street in Tehran was named after Bobby Sands. It seemed a great thing that this anguish and heroism taking place in Ireland was being acknowledged so far away in Iran. The British government probably thinks it merely an insult to them that the street was so named, but Bobby Sands is one of the great figures of Irish history, whose election could be said to have brought the Republican movement into electoral politics, thus leading eventually to peace and more representative government. To change the name of the street would be merely to award or exculpate Britain for centuries of colonial repression in Ireland, and, by extension, elsewhere in the world, including the Middle East.

Paul Whelan pmwhelan@ireland.com. It's an amazing fact but the British still think they are an Imperial Power with their Occupation of parts of Ireland and Iraq and is it not likely, even certain, that should George Bush in his desire for world domination decide that Iran is next on the hit list that Britain will also take part in such an act of aggression? Iran is a proud and sovereign nation that has withstood outside attacks and provocation. I would appeal to the people of Iran to withstand yet another dictate and help preserve the memory of Bobby Sands. Dear Sir, Please do not bow to pressure from England. Bobby Sands is one of the great Irish heroes for his stance against the British Empire, and made the ultimate sacrifice in giving his street after him. Once again, please retain the name 'Bobby shows how many people he inspired, and it must have been a

Why has the British Secretary of State not harassed Glasgow City Council to change the name of Nelson Mandela Square? He was, after all, in a very similar position to Bobby Sands MP, a revolutionary freedom fighter, who was elected by the people after years of imprisonment & armed struggle for his cause. Once again Britain has been shown to be a hypocritical government who think they can pick & choose, who/what revolution is acceptable to them. Britain is one of the biggest terrorists in the free world, sanctioning murder of its own citizens by loyalist paramilitaries with the help of British agents.

Emmet Dowling The idea that the British still think they have a right to any other nation other than their own sickens me. Micheal O'Dubhgaill What right does Britain think it has to dictate to any other country? There might come a day when the great nations of this world may find that Britain and her American pimp are a threat to the rest. At the minute, they respect no one. One small step is the beginning of any journey and keeping the street name as it is, signifies independence and strength. Britain, if the memory of the man who shamed you and exposed your savagery to the world hurts so much then do the right thing and disengage from Irish soil. On the other hand, if you wish to extend the logic of your approach, remove your offensive flags, symbols, statues and paraphernalia that you seem to think makes us less Irish. Think again. I know what I am and best of all, I know exactly what the British are. Your Excellency, help us by setting an example. America and Britain will never be appeased and they will never respect the Muslim world, but everyone else will.

Ireland has a particular affinity with you.

Lisa Held Aside from the fact that the renaming of the street allows Britain to pose itself as the victim, rather than the aggressor (a strategy that Britain likes to use on the Middle East as well), pressure to overturn the name shows a meddling and a distinct lack of respect for the Iranian government.

Read the Roll of Honour for Ireland's bravest men, We must be united in memory of the ten, England you're a monster, don't think that you have won, We will never be defeated while Ireland has such sons, In those dreary H-Block cages ten brave young Irishmen lay, Hungering for justice while their young lives ebbed away, For their rights as Irish soldiers and to free their native land, They stood beside their leader the gallant BOBBY SANDS, Now they mourn Hughes in Bellaghy, Ray McCreech in Armagh's hills, In those narrow streets of FREE Derry they miss O'Hara still, They so proudly gave their young lives to break Britannia's hold, Their names shall be remembered as history unfolds, Through the war torn streets of Ulster the black flags did sadly wave, To salute ten Irish martyrs, the bravest of the brave, Joe McDonnell, Martin Hurson, Kevin Lynch, Kieran Doherty, They gave their lives for freedom with Thomas McElwee, Michael Devine from FREE Derry you were the last to die..... Your souls cry out REMEMBER

There is no reason for giving into their demand to change the name of the street which cannot dishonour the courageous people of Iran who originally decided to stand for something moral in this world and recognise that Bobby Sands was a freedom fighter for his people and the British Government was an international terrorist organisation.

lalsalaam@hotmail.com. The oppressed of the world have a common cause, to fight injustice perpetrated by the neo-colonial powers. Bobby Sands continues to inspire millions of ordinary people to take up this challenge. Ah, now I get why the Brits wanna change the name of the street.

Ciaran Cochrane

Garry Saunders

Leave Bobby alone

The prisoners were forced into a situation that led to the hunger strikes. Their commitment and ultimate bravery was borne from a drive for justice and dignity for all. The UK government met the honour of their prisoners with deceit, vindictiveness and a heartless cruelty. Bobby Sands knew the price he may have to pay, and as Republican Commander he faced this fate, this was his bravery. The naming of this street in his name gives honour to a brave man and a creative spirit. It is also symbolic. I am unsure what is more important, the memory of Bobby Sands or what his struggle meant. Either way for the UK government to want the street name changed is a measure of how low their base characters have fallen. In every sense this act would demean us all, including those who ask for it. I implore you to resist this request so that the honourable may continue to be honoured.

The British government are once again concerning themselves with the business of another nation who like Ireland is being overrun by British delegates and they have no right to be there or to involve themselves with Iran's affairs in any way whatsoever.

Stiofán Ó Dálaigh stiofan_odalaigh@iol.ie. British “patriots” (known to the rest of the world as war criminals and murderers) are feted the world over with street names, statues, even city names, many of them in the very countries they tortured and persecuted. Bobby Sands was by all accounts an ordinary man, with an ordinary life. But when he was asked he didn't shy away from standing up for what he believed in, or selflessly giving up his life in a most difficult, long, painful way, for the country and the people he loved. Nor did he do this, like those British imperialists, at the expense, or contrary to the interests of other peoples for his own nation's gain. He only did this as part of the effort to free Ireland so she could live at peace with herself, and in harmony with the world. The Iranian government made a press for the freedom of the entire world to choose, in renaming Winston Churchill Street. I pray they won't let the imperialists change it back.

It is a shame that the British government is making such a fuss about this, but given their history of colonialism, we should expect nothing less. But we should still be outraged. This street sign is a small way to preserve his memory. The things we truly need to preserve are his memory and the ideas he was fighting for and died for. Move the embassy then!

How dare the British have the audacity to attempt to dictate the internal affairs of another country, especially when it refers to something like how another nation decides to name its streets. It seems ironic that the British created the icon that has become Bobby Sands through their horrific treatment of him, yet they try to crush any form of recognition of Bobby Sands and what he stands for. If they really take offence to the name of the street, then they should move the embassy.

barefootsoldier1970@yahoo.com Your Excellency, I'm not going to sit here and write a long-drawn out letter begging for you not to change the name of Bobby Sands Street, but I am going to appeal to you the importance of the street. No matter where one lives in the world, injustices have occurred. In your country, my country (USA), and especially in Ireland, specifically in N. Ireland. I'm asking you not to bow down to the Brits, they've already taken enough from the world. Please don't let them take the memory of Bobby. With all due respect, Clinton Grantham.

Sinead Pembroke Allowing the British to have the street name changed would mean the British would yet again believe they hold power over the world. That street name was put by the Iranian government to commemorate an Irish hero who still lives on in the hearts and minds of Irish freedom fighters. To allow the street name to live on would at the very least remind the British that they should feel guilty for all the men, women and children they have murdered in Ireland and around the world. Bobby Sands is still an Irish hero so the street name should live on.

sketches of Bobby Sands face on the 6 o'clock news. Every night he was thinner. I was ten years old and I thought Thatcher understood the enormity of what he had done, his bravery in the face of such severe persecution and abuse from the British.

They have no right to tell Ireland, Iran or anybody else what they can do. I did not know him, but any young man who shows that sort of courage and love for his country could not be evil. He was a good young man, a patriot and it's terrible that, even in death, the British are still trying to persecute him or tarnish his name. Please don't cave in to them. Honor Bobby's sacrifice and keep that street named after him. Certainly, no British statesman has shown so much love and sacrifice as Bobby. Thank You.

Long live Bobby Bobby Sands is an Irish national icon. He's everything that makes me proud to be Irish. 1000 times the man Churchill could ever have been. Britain - Get your filthy hands off Iran's Bobby Sands St.

May God shine on you Bobby Sands for the courage you have shown

In the fight against oppression Bobby stood up tall Freedom is something earned thus it is precious to those who fight for it but to those who take it from others it seals their fate with the "SANDS" of time!

 Iranians should have the right to name streets in their country.
 The British can't hide from their crimes forever

Have you any shame, British government?
 Please, listen to your heart and you will do what's right
 God bless Bobby and let the name live on

Keep Bobby Sand's spirit alive by retaining the name of this street. thus reminding the British Government of past crimes throughout the world.

Why would you change the name, because the Brits want you to? I know what I'd tell them to do.

The British never had a right in Ireland, they don't have a right in Ireland now and they never will. They cannot keep our Irish hearts from loving and always remembering those who died for Ireland's freedom. If they are not 'amused', they should move their embassy to some other street. Please make them keep their hands off Bobby Sands Street!

Des Grant Undying fame surrounds your name.....Let us not forget that Bobby Sands died in the greatest non violent protest in the 'current' struggle to unify the Irish People, they took away his life but one cannot erase the memory, that Sands was an Member of Parliament who had more votes in his constituency than Mrs Thatcher P.M....Mr Straw in his error has only illuminated the fact of this street's name.... Bobby Sands would be delighted....Oh Straw you FOOL look what you have done.....The Iranians will not be told by anyone who to chose as their heroes.....let alone ..Mr Jack Straw....a man of straw indeed...

People's will is the first, and Iran is friend of people.
Bobby Sands never gave in to the British establishment, neither should you. Please take on board some of his spirit and refute all suggestions that the name of this street should be changed.

- Claire O'Donnell Back off thieves!
- Kenneth Joseph McCluskey Bobby Sands is a true martyr. His brave and selfless act of patriotism deserves acknowledgement not just in Eire but throughout the world. Jon Tennison Time for Jack Straw to stop meddling in the Middle East. If he wants to change any street names he can demand the change of the name of Balfour Street in Southwark. I propose Palestine Street instead.
- Keith O'Bradaigh. To The President of Iran. I ask you to please let the requests of Jack Straw and any of his other imperialistic cronies calling on you to change the naming of Bobby Sands Street to fall on deaf ears. Bobby Sands was a man who tried to live in a society that was and still is subjected to an imperial occupation, a system not far off that which existed in White South Africa. Bobby fought against a cruel system, a system similar to the one that was run under Saddam Hussein, barbaric. Bobby died for my country and the right to be treated as a human being, and not the slave of an Empire. Bobby and all that he died for will live forever in my heart and many other peoples around the world. Please do not dishonour his memory by denaming the street. Go raibh maith agut. Tíochfaidh ar la.
- Aisling Ni Mhaoinigh God Bless you, Bobby. I think the street should be named after a true hero who stood up for what he believed in and died for his country! How dare you, Jack Straw! Tíochfaidh ar la!
Victory to the POWS.
- Eoinigh As the petition said, the British government have absolutely no authority to influence the decisions made by any foreign country. If the Iranians want to honour somebody who opposed British rule then this is their own prerogative. Too long have the British ruled too many countries and the question is are the British slowly returning to past imperialistic hunger with the USA or are they simply just being odd? Here's an idea, maybe they should move their embassy somewhere else if it bugs them so much. From Afghanistan to Iraq, the UK and US are slowly destroying whatever they oppose.

Claire-Gilleen Kennedy Bobby Sands should never be forgotten. He paid the ultimate price for the land he loved and he is still waiting.
